

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A semiconductor dynamic quantity sensor has a support substrate with a rectangular opening portion, and a movable electrode and fixed electrodes are respectively supported by the support substrate through supporting portions to face the opening portion. The supporting portions supporting the movable electrode are arranged in a direction approximately the same as that in which the supporting portions supporting the fixed electrodes are arranged.